O. O. M'INTYRE, FAMED WRITER, DIES SUDDENLY

Columnist, Who Began His Career In Ohio, Ill Since Saturday

MANY PAPERS SERVED
Wide Popularity Gained By Personalizing Gotham

NEW YORK, Feb. 14 — (UP) — O. O. McIntyre, the small-town newspaper columnist from Gallipolis, O., who won fame and wealth interpreting the news of the big city, died today.

The columnist was taken ill on Saturday. Following his lifelong practice, he refused to call a doctor. He died about 2 a. m. today in his Park avenue apartment.

McIntyre—Oscar Odd McIntyre was his full name — would have observed his 54th birthday on Feb. 18.

His death apparently was caused by a heart attack. Only his wife was with him in the apartment. She said that his last words were a request to her:

"Turn your face toward me so I can see you."

McIntyre applied to New York the principles he learned when he was a reporter for the Gallipolis Journal in 1902. At his death his column, "New York Day By Day," was syndicated in 380 newspapers, earning him a huge salary.

McIntyre gained his great popularity by personalizing New York, by treating its masses of stone and steel and its millions of inhabitants as though they were places and people whom he knew intimately and whom his readers wanted to know.

Native of Missouri
He was born in Plattsburg, Mo., Feb. 18, 1884, and was educated at Bartlett's college in Cincinnati. From the Gallipolis Journal he (Continued on Page Two)

FARM BUREAU'S MANAGER FOUND DEAD IN AUTO

PAINESVILLE, Feb. 14 — (UP) — C. C. Huff, 57, manager of the Lake county farm bureau who had been missing from his home for six days, was found dead in his automobile near here Sunday.

Two boy scouts, Chester Double-dee and Charles Shepard, found the body. Coroner James G. Powell, who reported Huff's death as suicide, said a garden hose had been attached to the exhaust pipe and run into the automobile.

A note found in the car, addressed to Huff's family, said he had taken his life because of illness. He is survived by his wife, a son, and two daughters.

A party of 100 American Legionnaires and boy scouts had searched for the body.

British Watch Cabinet Crisis

EDEN AND PRIME MINISTER ARGUE FOREIGN POLICY

Former Urges Caution In All Negotiations With Italy and Germany

CHAMBERLAIN FOR HASTE

Secretary Asks Delay Until Reichstag Hears Hitler

LONDON, Feb. 14 — (UP) — Britons waited today for clarification of reports that there were serious differences in the cabinet regarding efforts to settle problems outstanding between Great Britain and Italy.

Reports centered round Anthony Eden, foreign secretary, and Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain. It was asserted that Chamberlain desired a rapid solution of disagreements with Italy and that Eden insisted that caution was necessary in any such effort.

There have been similar reports before on occasions when the cabinet was seeking a possible approach to Germany or Italy.

Today, the wide range of reports on new differences showed the extent of confusion and the scarcity of authentic information available.

The Daily Telegraph, conservative, asserted on the "highest authority" that there were no differences at all. The Daily Express, independent conservative had been at work to persuade Eden to modify his attitude and that though there still was anxiety, there was

SUPREME COURT ASKED TO RULE ON OGRIN ACT

COLUMBUS, Feb. 14 — (UP) — The Ohio supreme court was asked today to pass on the constitutionality of the Ogrin act providing for the repayment of property owners of all penalties and interest paid on delinquent taxes from June 20, 1930, to Jan. 1, 1937.

The case was appealed by W. A. Crotty, Cleveland, who sued to enjoin Cuyahoga county Auditor John Zangerle and County Treasurer John J. Boyle from repaying Cuyahoga county taxpayers some $2,000,000 under the act.

Holding the act unconstitutional, the Common Pleas court granted the injunction but the Court of Appeals reversed this decision.

Another case involving the Ogrin act, filed by the Cleves-North Bend Building and Loan Assn. which seeks to compel the Hamilton county auditor to refund delinquent taxes paid by the company is pending in the court.

JURORS SEATED FOR TRIAL OF CLYDE SEYMOUR

Trial of Clyde Seymour, 24, of Pontius Lane, on a charge of burglary and larceny involving the theft of some meat from the smokehouse of John and Luther Ours, near Five Points, was being held in Common Pleas court Monday.

JURY STUDIES SANITY

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 14 — (UP) — The jury which found Paul A. Wright guilty of manslaughter for killing his wife and John B. Kimmel, convened again today to decide whether he was sane at the time of the slayings.

MINISTERS TO AID WOMAN JAILED FOR SMASHING 'SLOTS'

ALTON, Ill., Feb. 14 — (UP) — Mrs. Irene Kite, 32, held new hope today for her release from jail so she may buy a new axe and continue her crusade as a "second Carrie Nation" against the slot machine racket.

Fifteen Protestant ministers read from their pulpits at Sunday services a resolution praising her work and criticizing county officials for sending her to jail.

Mrs. Kite, held at the county jail in Edwardsville, said she was cheered by the news of support for her cause.

"It's fine," she said. "Now all I want to do is get out of here and get a new axe." Her other one, with which she started her campaign last December, was confiscated by Alton police.

She began her raids on taverns, she said, because her husband, Daniel, was not allowed to operate a dice game while other gamblers and "members of a syndicate" were unmolested.

She met no opposition until Thursday when State's Attorney Lester Geers issued a warrant against her after a raid on an Edwardsville tavern.

She might have obtained her release on bond but insisted on remaining in her cell to attract attention to her cause. Her attorney indicated he will seek bail today.

The ministerial association drafted its resolution Friday and appointed a committee to send a letter to Attorney General Otto Kerner, protesting lack of law enforcement. They also warned they were ready to "take the necessary steps, not only to remove, but to keep gambling, devices out of the community."

"They condemned the 'legal persecution' of Mrs. Kite and said they would support her 'every procedure.'"

ATHLETE GOES ON TRIAL FOR KILLING CHILD

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 14 — (UP) — Mary Keenan O'Connor, 19-year-old Immaculata college athlete, went on trial today for the slaying of 5-year-old Nancy Glenn last Labor Day. The testimony of her girl friend may send her to prison for life.

The state, accusing Miss O'Connor of killing the child because she had begged pennies and a bicycle ride, was not expected to demand the death penalty.

William A. Gray, attorney for the husky, curly-haired girl athlete, said her defense would be "unusual," but refused to divulge its nature.

Oddly, Miss O'Connor's friend, Mrs. Marie Phillips, 25, a 1936 Olympic gymnast, was expected to be the prosecution's chief witness. Mrs. Phillips told police that Miss O'Connor admitted to her that she had killed Nancy in a fit of anger.

The child's body was found in a mud puddle on a deserted path near her home. It was covered with a piece of tin.

Eden to Resign?

CAPTAIN Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, may resign his cabinet post because he disagrees with Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's policy toward Italy, according to London reports. The Daily Mirror says Eden advised the government to wait until Italian troops had been withdrawn from Spain before loaning Italy $125,000,000.

NEW AGREEMENT BETWEEN NAZIS, AUSTRIA NEARS

VIENNA, Feb. 14 — (UP) — Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg and Fuehrer Adolf Hitler are negotiating an agreement supplementing the Austro-German accord of July, 1936, it was said today in usually reliable quarters.

It was hoped, informants said, that Hitler could announce the agreement in his speech to the Reichstag next Sunday.

As the report of the negotiations was received, Schuschnigg received Gen. Karl Bardolf, a leader of the moderate wing of Austrian Nazis.

It was reported that, under the agreement sought as the result of a conference between Hitler and Schuschnigg at Hitler's Bavarian mountain retreat Saturday, subversive activities of Austrian Nazis would be denounced and that, in return, Austria would make important concessions to the "national opposition."

KIDNAP THREAT REPORT TERMED "ALL A MISTAKE"

TOLEDO, O., Feb. 14 — (UP) — Mrs. Cora Taft said today that a report of an alleged $10,000 kidnap threat against her grandson, James Eckels, 23, is "all a mistake."

There is nothing to the report that she received a note written on hotel stationery demanding money and threatening the young man unless it is paid, Mrs. Taft said.

Nine Drown, 18 Missing In Australian Disaster

SYDNEY, Australia, Feb. 14 — (UP) — Eighteen of 175 persons aboard a double-decked ferryboat that capsized yesterday in shark-infested waters while following the United States cruiser Louisville remained missing today.

Nine persons were known to have drowned. The bodies of four were recovered from a cabin of the boat by divers. It was feared that the others missing were trapped somewhere on the boat which sank in 70 feet of water.

Nine other persons previously reported missing were found safe. Seventy-five of those rescued were taken to hospitals, many in serious condition from submersion.

Prime Minister Joseph A. Lyons radioed a message to Commander Rufus W. Mathewson of the Louisville expressing the Australian government's appreciation of the "prompt and heroic" action of the cruiser's crew in rescuing 26 of the passengers.

The tragedy occurred while the ferryboat was following the Louisville which was departing after a visit marking the 150th anniversary of Australia. The Louisville had to when the ferryboat capsized. Two of her boats were launched and 150 of her lifebelts were shot into the water by automatic devices.

One officer, five seamen and 15 members of the ship's band dived into the shark-infested water and attempted to break cabin windows to release passengers.

Operations to raise the ferryboat were started in search of the bodies of those missing.

COUNTY PROBES STATE CHARGES FOR PATIENTS

Accounts For Treatment Of Feeble-minded To Be Aired; Annual Cost $10,000

County commissioners employed Carl Dellenbaugh, of 1543 Franklin avenue, Columbus, Monday, to investigate accounts paid by the county to the state for the care of feeble-minded persons. Alleged overcharges are being studied.

Mr. Dellenbaugh has been employed by numerous central Ohio counties, the commissioners said, to investigate bills. The price to be paid by the county for the investigation is $100. The county owes no delinquent bills to the state.

The state has been charging the maximum cost for care of feeble-minded patients it is contended, when the charges should be based on the per capita cost.

The county's bill for the care of the feeble-minded persons averages about $10,000 a year.

MOTORIST PAYS FINE OF $50 FOR DRUNK DRIVING

Charles H. Engler, 49, of 772 City Park avenue, Columbus, paid a fine of $100 and costs, $50 suspended, in Squire J. S. Hoover's court in Harrison township, Monday, on a charge of operating an auto when intoxicated.

The charge was filed by John S. Baker, constable, resulting from an auto wreck early Sunday on Route 23 just north of South Bloomfield. Officers said the auto driven by Engler left the highway and went through a fence. One woman in the auto escaped injury. Another was taken to a Columbus hospital for treatment of a fractured leg. Names of the passengers were not obtained by officials.

Roy Barton, Perry township, escaped with minor injuries Saturday night when his car collided with a horse on Route 22 about three miles west of Williamsport. The horse, owned by Harry Puffinberger, of Williamsport, was killed. The accident occurred about 7 o'clock during a fog.

Cassius Kirk, of New Holland, suffered several broken fingers and an injured nose Friday when the auto in which he was riding with his son, Joseph, was involved in a collision near Sabina. The father and son were enroute to Wilmington when the accident occurred.

PLANE BORROWER HURT; CRASH FATAL TO FRIEND

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 14 — (UP) — Thomas C. Winter, 30, who borrowed an airplane in which to take a friend for a ride, was in critical condition today from injuries received when the plane crashed, killing the friend, Leonard Breen, 34.

Winter borrowed the plane from Benjamin Harper. After a half-hour flight, Winter took off again and shortly after the second take-off banked sharply about 100 feet from the ground. The plane apparently did not have speed enough to come out of the bank and crashed.

Consider Mrs. overcoats and leopards at $8.88, $19.50, women's fur coats for $24.75, women's $8.95. ### REP. FISH URGES NAVAL EQUALITY FOR JAPANESE

Administration Blamed For Breaking 5-5-3 Ratio To Lead Building Race

F. D., McREYNOLDS TALK

New York Solon Says U. S. Would Police World

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 — (UP) — Frank Littell, who described himself as "Social Action Chairman of the National Council of Methodist Youth," told the house naval affairs committee today that he does "not believe in defending my country" and the youths he represents "will not bear arms" in event of war.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 — (UP) — Administration congressional leaders today attacked proposals that President Roosevelt call a world arms conference as Rep. Hamilton Fish, R., N. Y., charged that the United States is leading a giant naval building race and said he saw no reason why Japan should not be granted naval equality with this country.

While controversy over the threatened race for naval supremacy developed in both houses of congress, Chairman Sam McReynolds of the house foreign affairs committee conferred at the White House with President Roosevelt on foreign policy.

Although McReynolds insisted the topic of a possible international conference to head off a navy building race among the seapowers did not come up during the discussion, he said that he believes such a parley would not be timely at present.

Fish, ranking minority member of the house foreign affairs committee, blamed the Roosevelt administration for failure to maintain the 5-5-3 naval ratio among the world's great naval powers.

Testifying before the house naval affairs committee on the Vinson bill to increase strength of U. S. war fleets by 20 percent, he joined in demands for an international conference to head off a naval building race.

Follow the Crowds BOOSTERS Your Dollars Grow

When the bargain tree is shaken in Circleville Thursday a shower of almost unheard of values will fall into the hands of district shoppers. The event coming up is not just another sale, but a carefully thought out part of a local program to prove to buyers that Circleville merchandise is good merchandise at prices at least as low and in most instances lower than those charged at the other so-called bargain counters of Central Ohio.

Folk who read the ads consistently have learned that prices charged regularly are frequently lower than the widely ballyhooed charges made for similar merchandise by many of the large city stores when they stage their frequent sales.

Consider Mrs. overcoats and leopards at $8.88, $19.50, women's fur coats for $24.75, women's $8.95. Winter coats for $4.98, 100 women's silk dresses with values up to $7.99 for $1 and $2, fine innerspring mattresses for $9.95, floor lamps for $1.95 and three piece bedroom suits for $35.50.

EDEN AND PRIME MINISTER ARGUE FOREIGN POLICY

Former Urges Caution In All Negotiations With Italy and Germany

Sabotage Charged

The Daily Herald, labor party organ, asserted that Chamberlain still had confidence in Eden and said editorially that it seemed someone either was trying to sabotage negotiations with Italy or to extract from the negotiations "results more acceptable to diabolic fascism." It advised Chamberlain to make a public statement.

The Daily Mail, independent conservative and pro-fascist, expressed belief that the situation could be solved but added that a reshuffling of the cabinet became a possibility several days ago because of differences in the cabinet. It urged Chamberlain to restore "harmony" in the cabinet—perhaps a suggestion to eliminate Eden.

The Daily Mirror, like the Daily Mail owned by the Rothermere interests, forecast a cabinet crisis and asserted that if Eden "continued" to "defy" Chamberlain he would "have to go." It quoted members of parliament as asking whether Eden would resign and form his own party group.

Diplomatic quarters had no doubt in their minds that there were differences—not especially among cabinet ministers as a whole but between Chamberlain and Eden. Their version was that Chamberlain was eager for friendship with both Italy and Germany and that Eden insisted that any approach must be made warily.

Spain is Cited

As regards Italy, Eden was said to have insisted that as part of any agreement Italy must stop aiding the Spanish Nationalists, and to have resisted Italian efforts to borrow money here.

Regarding Germany it was said that again Chamberlain wanted a quick agreement and that Eden advised marking time until Germany's own situation became clearer, particularly advising nothing be done at all before Fuehrer Adolf Hitler made his speech to the German Reichstag next Sunday.

Eden was said to feel strongly that British understanding with Mussolini and Hitler, if bought at too high a price, might alienate American sympathy and undo any progress made in recent months in British-American relations. He was said to be opposed to risking Britain's position in world opinion as a leading Democratic nation to get promises which he—Eden—felt might prove to be an inadequate return.

Crack Nazi Troops Seem Docile to Hitler Here

WORLD interest is focused on Germany as rumors of unrest have continued following the cabinet and army leadership shakeup which placed Chancellor Adolf Hitler in complete command of crack

Nazi legions. Apparently all was peaceful when this picture was taken showing Hitler reviewing troops at Nuremberg, and not much credence has been placed in "revolt" rumors.

TWO AIRPLANES REACH ICE FLOE NEAR GREENLAND

MOSCOW, Feb. 14—(UP)—The icebreaker Taimir landed two airplanes on an improvised ice-floe airfield today, seeking to reach four Russian scientists isolated, on the ice a few miles off the Greenland coast.

The Taimir sought to blast its way yard by yard through the ice jam with dynamite. So thick was the ice that in many hours yesterday only 330 yards was made, and then the Taimir's master decided to try the planes.

Working throughout the night under searchlights, whose rays were visible to the scientists, the Taimir's crew made ready for the take-off and this morning they were out on the ice.

Moscow newspapers maintained staffs on duty nearly all night, hoping that the word would come that the icebreaker reached the scientists and taken them aboard.

At 10 p. m. Saturday, the Taimir was but 20 miles from the floe. Flashes of the ship's searchlight, and smoke from its funnel, could be seen on the floe; those on the icebreaker could see the smoke drifting up from the snow house in which the four scientists were housed.

STATUTORY CHARGE PUTS MAN IN COUNTY PRISON

James Thompson, 36, of Williamsport, Route 2, was lodged in the county jail Saturday night under a fine of $100 and costs and 60 days imposed by Mayor W. B. Cady on a statutory charge.

The charge against Thompson was filed by Joe Walker, who contended his wife, Mrs. Clara Walker, was residing with Thompson in Deercreek township. The Walkers are residents of Gallipolis.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff said statutory charges would be filed against John Smith, 52, and Stella May Rambo, 32, of Stoutsville, R. F. D. They were arrested Saturday night in Washington township, officers said.

Police cooperated with the sheriff's department in the cases.

ADMIRAL CLAIMS U. S. MENACED BY FOREIGN HORDES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14—(UP)—Rear Admiral Clark H. Woodward, commandant of the third naval district warned today that unless an adequate armament program is rushed the United States may become the "Ethiopia or China of the Western hemisphere."

In an interview with the United Press the 61-year-old commandant of the Brooklyn, N. Y., navy yard said that "diplomatic success depends more today on the calibre of the nation's guns than on the calibre of its diplomats."

He scoffed at critics of President Roosevelt's proposed $800,000,000 naval expansion program who advocate the building of huge fleets of bombing planes. He said that battleships are "the backbone of the navy" and that congress should immediately authorize construction of seven replacements for those becoming over age by 1942.

Woodward charged that the "gangster dictators" and "swagging bandit legions" of Europe and Asia menace the peace of the United States.

More than 4,000 invitations to Democratic leaders have been issued for the Feb. 23 reception, it was reported. The affair will be held at one of Washington's largest hotels.

McNutt is due here from Manila next week to report to President Roosevelt on Philippine and Far Eastern conditions. Political rumors, however, said that his report will be incidental to the immediate purpose of his trip—which the reports said is to aid in launching the presidential boom.

OHIOAN'S DEATH ADMITTED BY SURRENDERED SLAYER

MARIETTA, Feb. 14—(UP)—Guy Warman, 52, charged with killing Andrew H. Adams near here last week, surrendered to Washington county authorities today.

Warman told officers he went to Pomeroy after the shooting of Adams, then to Huntington, Charleston and back to Marietta, by hitch-hiking his way. He formerly resided in New Martinsville, W. Va., and had worked for 12 years in an Akron rubber plant.

Prosecutor William Summers said Warman confessed the shooting. Warman will be arraigned Tuesday.

70 POUNDS OF MARIJUANA TAKEN IN TOLEDO RAID

TOLEDO, Feb. 14—(UP)—Two men were arrested and 70 pounds of marijuana plant were taken today in a narcotic raid by federal county and city officers.

A garage which officers said had been used as a retailing headquarters was raided at 4 a. m. John Schappner, 40, owner of the garage, and Steve Kardos, 51, an employee, were taken into custody. They were to be arraigned before a U. S. commissioner later today.

Agent Charles A. Burrows said the narcotic supply had been grown near Oak Harbor, O.

REP. FISH URGES NAVAL EQUALITY FOR JAPANESE

Administration leaders, however, assailed proposals for the arms conference as "obviously futile and tending to weaken" the United States position in the Far Eastern conflict.

Chairman Key Pittman, D. Nev., of the senate foreign relations committee, struck vigorously at plans of Sen. William H. King, D., Utah, and Rep. Maury Maverick, D., Tex., to introduce resolutions requesting the President to call an international parley to end international suspicion and fear and to limit armaments.

"Any such action by the senate at present would weaken the effect of our government's firm stand in the protection of our rights in China," Pittman said in charging Japan with "wilful violation" of past treaties of similar nature.

Pittman said that in view of the "failure" of the Washington naval conference of 1922 and the recent London naval parley there was even less reason to believe that such a meeting could be successful at present.

Weakness Indicated

"The calling of such a conference," he said, "would indicate weakness on the part of the United States and would result in our government delaying action (in regard to increasing defenses) during the conference while other governments took advantage of the delay to continue increasing their own arms."

Pittman's comment came as King released the text of his resolution calling on the president to act in an effort to end the present international war crisis. It declared it to be the policy of congress to participate in any limitation program agreed upon.

"The increase in world armaments," the resolution said, "is causing deep concern among the people of all lands and is regarded by them as provocative of international conflicts."

"Such increase imposes heavy burdens of taxation upon the people and every form of industry, and interrupts trade and commerce among nations."

PLAN TO UNITE F.D.R.'S FOES, G.O.P. OFFERED

Ranking Republicans Hint Coalition Probable For Next Election

DEMOCRATS ARE SILENT

Several New Deal Critics Scoff At Idea

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14—(UP)—Conservative Democrats who have been consistent critics of the New Deal refrained from any comment today on week-end proposals for a coalition of Republicans and anti-Roosevelt Democrats.

The complete silence of Democratic congressmen who have fought the administration reform program was accepted as tantamount to rejection, at least for the present, of any plan for uniting dissatisfied Democrats with the G.O.P. in an effort to scrap the New Deal at the congressional elections this fall.

The coalition proposal—advanced by Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg, R. Mich., and other ranking Republicans at Lincoln Day dinners throughout the country—was not new. Vandenberg, himself, has been toying with the idea for some time. But it was believed by political observers that the next move must come from Democrats. Unless President Roosevelt makes the New Deal even more distasteful to some party leaders than it already is, it was believed that no specific moves will be forthcoming for some time.

Critic Remains Silent

Particularly significant was the flat refusal of Sen. Josiah W. Bailey, D. N. C., consistent critic of the New Deal, to comment either on the coalition proposal or on the warning of Gov. George D. Aiken of Vermont that a third party would result from the failure of Republicans to purge their leadership of ultra-conservatives.

Likewise, Sen. Bennett C. Clark, D. Mo., an opponent of some New Deal measures, and Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney, D. Wyo., who broke with the President over the court reorganization program, declined comment.

Other conservative Democrats, who refused to talk publicly, expressed the belief that it was too early to forecast the 1940 alignment.

Capital observers believed that the anti-administration Democrats would withhold their decision until the lines for the 1940 presidential race are more clearly drawn. It was believed the political alignment in 1940 depends a great deal on who is selected as the Democratic presidential candidate. Despite recurring rumors on the President's choice, there have been no moves within the Democratic party to indicate a favorite. It is generally regarded, however, that Robert H. Jackson, solicitor general designate, now holds the No. 1 position. But more than two years remain before the political conventions.

Manifests Cited

Another sign among Democrats of distaste for a coalition with Republicans was the ill-fated manifesto, "an address to the American people" which was prepared by Vandenberg and Bailey. It was pointed out again today as an example of the reluctance of anti-New Dealers to carry their antagonism to the extreme of coalition. The manifesto drew few Democratic signatures and was withdrawn after Minority Leader Charles N. McNary advised some Republicans that the proposal was "ill-advised."

A part of the 10-point manifesto program, including balancing of the budget, elimination of "punitive" taxes, establishment in law of "responsibility" for labor, and restoration of confidence in government, was advanced by Vandenberg in a speech at the Boston Middlesex club Saturday night as essential to combat the recession.

He recalled that Lincoln was a "coalitionist" and said, after paying tribute to the "patriotism of many sound Jeffersonian Democrats," that he anticipated a "deeply conscientious realignment of our American political forces."

"Some people say all cigarettes are alike, Mr. Snead... Can Camels really be so different?"

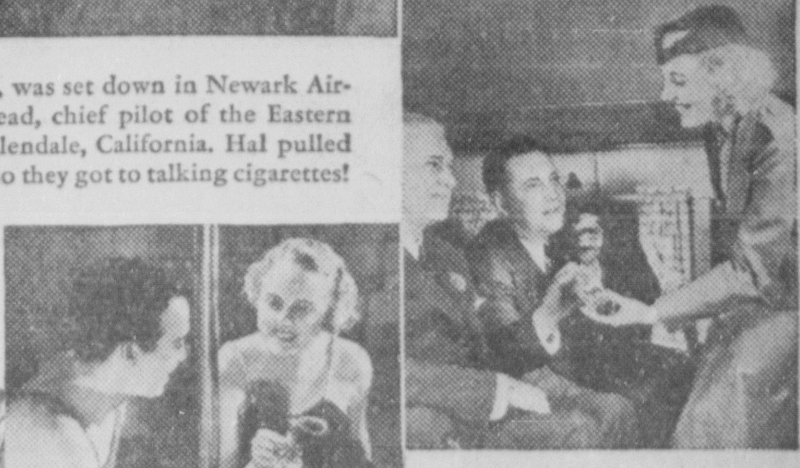

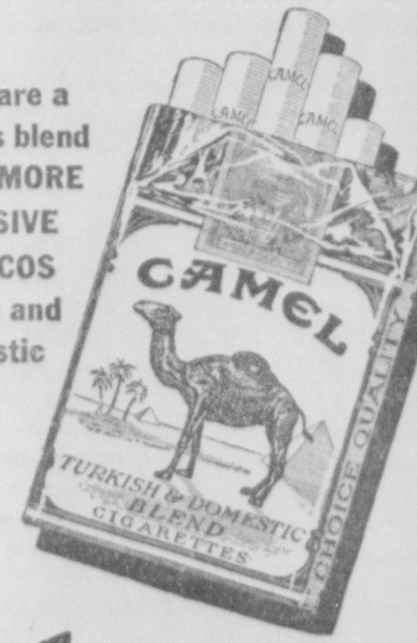

"There's a big difference, sir. I can tell the difference in the way Camels hit the spot and agree with me! I know most American fliers who have several thousand hours in the air. The majority are steady smokers and prefer Camels. Years of experience have taught them that Camel is a really different cigarette!"

EDEN AND PRIME MINISTER ARGUE FOREIGN POLICY

Former Urges Caution In All Negotiations With Italy and Germany

hope that the cabinet differences could be composed.

Sabotage Charged

The Daily Herald, labor party organ, asserted that Chamberlain still had confidence in Eden and said editorially that it seemed someone either was trying to sabotage negotiations with Italy or to extract from the negotiations "results more acceptable to dehard fascism." It advised Chamberlain to make a public statement.

The Daily Mail, independent conservative and pro-fascist, expressed belief that the situation could be solved but added that a reshuffling of the cabinet became a possibility several days ago because of differences in the cabinet. It urged Chamberlain to restore "harmony" in the cabinet—perhaps a suggestion to eliminate Eden.

The Daily Mirror, like the Daily Mail owned by the Rothmans interests, forecast a cabinet crisis and asserted that if Eden "continued" to "defy" Chamberlain he would "have to go." It quoted members of parliament as asking whether Eden would resign and form his own party group.

Diplomatic quarters had no doubt in their minds that there were differences—not especially among cabinet ministers as a whole but between Chamberlain and Eden. Their version was that Chamberlain was eager for friendship with both Italy and Germany and that Eden insisted that any approach must be made warily.

Spain is Cited

As regards Italy, Eden was said to have insisted that as part of any agreement Italy must stop aiding the Spanish Nationalists, and to have resisted Italian efforts to borrow money here.

Regarding Germany it was said that again Chamberlain wanted a quick agreement and that Eden advised marking time until Germany's own situation became clearer, particularly advising nothing be done at all before Fuehrer Adolf Hitler made his speech to the German Reichstag next Sunday.

Eden was said to feel strongly that British understanding with Mussolini and Hitler, if bought at too high a price, might alienate American sympathy and undo any progress made in recent months in British-American relations. He was said to be opposed to risking Britain's position in world opinion as a leading Democratic nation to get promises which he—Eden—felt might prove to be an inadequate return.

From the Herald he went to the Cincinnati Post as successively telegraph editor, city editor and assistant managing editor and became also an associate editor of Hampton's Magazine.

In 1912 he took the big leap—he came to New York where his literary flare brought him the coveted job of drama editor on the New York Evening Mail. Not long after his arrival in New York he started the syndicated column which he continued until his death.

He was also the author of several books including "Bright Light Nights," "23 Selected Stories," "Another Odd Book," "The Big Town." He was a contributor to many magazines, notably Cosmopolitan, Life, Liberty and the American magazine.

He married Maybelle Hope Small, of Gallipolis, in 1908 on his 24th birthday.

Crack Nazi Troops Seem Docile to Hitler Here

WORLD interest is focused on Germany as rumors of unrest have continued following the cabinet and army leadership shakeup which placed Chancellor Adolf Hitler in complete command of crack

Nazi legions. Apparently all was peaceful when this picture was taken showing Hitler reviewing troops at Nuremberg, and not much credence has been placed in "revolt" rumors.

WELL, I'LL TELL YOU.

BY BOB BURNS

I guess maybe it's because this is a new country out here, but people seem to be kinda restless. They want'a keep movin' around all the time and don't stay with one job very long like they do down home.

The other day a man applied to me for a job workin' around the house and I says "Well, I want a good, steady man that'll stay with me." He says "Well, you can depend on me—I can give you recommendations of 214 people that I worked for last year."

TWO AIRPLANES REACH ICE FLOE NEAR GREENLAND

MOSCOW, Feb. 14—(UP)—The icebreaker Taimir landed two airplanes on an improvised ice-floe airfield today, seeking to reach four Russian scientists isolated on the ice a few miles off the Greenland coast.

The Taimir sought to blast its way yard by yard through the ice jam with dynamite. So thick was the ice that in many hours yesterday only 330 yards was made, and then the Taimir's master decided to try the planes.

Working throughout the night under searchlights, whose rays were visible to the scientists, the Taimir's crew made ready for the take-off and this morning they were out on the ice.

Moscow newspapers maintained staffs on duty nearly all night, hoping that the word would come that the icebreaker reached the scientists and taken them aboard.

At 10 p. m. Saturday, the Taimir was but 20 miles from the floe. Flashes of the ship's searchlight, and smoke from its funnel, could be seen on the floe; those on the icebreaker could see the smoke drifting up from the snow house in which the four scientists were housed.

STATUTORY CHARGE PUTS MAN IN COUNTY PRISON

James Thompson, 36, of Williamsport, Route 2, was lodged in the county jail Saturday night under a fine of $100 and costs and 60 days imposed by Mayor W. B. Cady on a statutory charge.

The charge against Thompson was filed by Joe Walker, who contended his wife, Mrs. Clara Walker, was residing with Thompson in Deercreek township. The Walkers are residents of Gallipolis.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff said statutory charges would be filed against John Smith, 52, and Stella May Rambo, 32, of Stoutsville, R. F. D. They were arrested Saturday night in Washington township, officers said.

Police cooperated with the sheriff's department in the cases.

DISTURBED AT NIGHT?

DIURETIC stimulant such as Dr. Pierce's A-m-u-r-i-c-a is often indicated and usually it is sufficient to relieve minor kidney irregularities. Mrs. Lizzie A. Johnson, 753 Doyle St., Columbus, Ohio, says: "I would feel so tired and worn-out especially in the morning. I used Dr. Pierce's A-m-u-r-i-c-a Tablets and they helped me wonderfully. My kidneys gave me no more trouble." Buy at drug store.

ADMIRAL CLAIMS U. S. MENACED BY FOREIGN HORDES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14—(UP)—Rear Admiral Clark H. Woodward, commandant of the third naval district warned today that unless an adequate armament program is rushed the United States may become the "Ethiopia of China of the Western Hemisphere."

In an interview with the United Press the 61-year-old commandant of the Brooklyn, N. Y., navy yard said that "diplomatic success depends more today on the calibre of the nation's guns than on the calibre of its diplomats."

He scoffed at critics of President Roosevelt's proposed $800,000,000 naval expansion program who advocate the building of huge fleets of bombing planes. He said that battleships are "the backbone of the navy" and that congress should immediately authorize construction of seven replacements for those becoming over age by 1942.

Woodward charged that the "gangster dictators" and "swagging bandit legions" of Europe and Asia menace the peace of the United States.

OHIOAN'S DEATH ADMITTED BY SURRENDERED SLAYER

MARIETTA, Feb. 14—(UP)—Guy Warman, 52, charged with killing Andrew H. Adams near here last week, surrendered to Washington county authorities today.

Warman told officers he went to Pomeroy after the shooting of Adams, then to Huntington, Charleston and back to Marietta, by hitch-hiking his way. He formerly resided in New Martinsville, W. Va., and had worked for 12 years in an Akron rubber plant.

Prosecutor William Summers said Warman confessed the shooting. Warman will be arraigned Tuesday.

REP. FISH URGES NAVAL EQUALITY FOR JAPANESE

we are trying to do—to police the world?" Fish asked.

Administration leaders, however, assailed proposals for the conference as "obviously futile and tending to weaken" the United States position in the Far Eastern conflict.

Chairman Key Pittman, D. Nev., of the senate foreign relations committee, struck vigorously at plans of Sen. William H. King, D., Utah, and Rep. Maury Maverick, D., Tex., to introduce resolutions requesting the President to call an international parley to end international suspicion and fear and to limit armaments.

"Any such action by the senate at present would weaken the effect of our government's firm stand in the protection of our rights in China," Pittman said in charging Japan with "wilful violation" of past treaties of similar nature.

Pittman said that in view of the "failure" of the Washington naval conference of 1922 and the recent London naval parley there was even less reason to believe that such a meeting could be successful at present.

Weakness Indicated

"The calling of such a conference," he said, "would indicate weakness on the part of the United States and would result in our government delaying action (in regard to increasing defenses) during the conference while other governments took advantage of the delay to continue increasing their own arms."

Pittman's comment came as King released the text of his resolution calling on the president to act in an effort to end the present international war crisis. It declared it to be the policy of congress to participate in any limitation program agreed upon.

"The increase in world armaments," the resolution said, "causing deep concern among the people of all lands and is regarded by them as provocative of international conflicts."

"Such increase imposes heavy burdens of taxation upon the people and every form of industry and interrupts trade and commerce among nations."

Effective color combinations in the print fabrics are—gray backgrounds with Dubonnet motif, dark green grounds, old gold and plum.

PLAN TO UNITE F.D.R.'S FOES, G.O.P. OFFERED

Ranking Republicans Hint Coalition Probable For Next Election

DEMOCRATS ARE SILENT

Several New Deal Critics
Scoff At Idea

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14—(UP)—Conservative Democrats who have been consistent critics of the New Deal refrained from any comment today on week-end proposals for a coalition of Republicans and anti-Roosevelt Democrats.

The complete silence of Democratic congressmen who have fought the administration reform program was accepted as tantamount to rejection, at least for the present, of any plan for uniting dissatisfied Democrats with the G.O.P. in an effort to scrap the New Deal at the congressional elections this fall.

The coalition proposal—advanced by Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg, R. Mich., and other ranking Republicans at Lincoln Day dinners throughout the country—was not new. Vandenberg, himself, has been toying with the idea for some time. But it was believed by political observers that the next move must come from Democrats. Unless President Roosevelt makes the New Deal even more distasteful to some party leaders than it already is, it was believed that no specific moves will be forthcoming for some time.

Critic Remains Silent

Particularly significant was the flat refusal of Sen. Josiah W. Bailey, D. N. C., consistent critic of the New Deal, to comment either on the coalition proposal or on the warning of Gov. George D. Aiken of Vermont that a third party would result from the failure of Republicans to purge their leadership of ultra-conservatives.

Likewise, Sen. Bennett C. Clark, D. Mo., an opponent of some New Deal measures, and Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney, D. Wyo., who broke with the President over the court reorganization program, declined comment.

Other conservative Democrats, who refused to talk publicly, expressed the belief that it was too early to forecast the 1940 alignment.

Capital observers believed that the anti-administration Democrats would withhold their decision until the lines for the 1940 presidential race are more clearly drawn. It was believed the political alignment in 1940 depends a great deal on who is selected as the Democratic presidential candidate. Despite recurring rumors on the President's choice, there have been no moves within the Democratic party to indicate a favorite. It is generally regarded, however, that Robert H. Jackson, solicitor general designate, now holds the No. 1 position. But more than two years remain before the political conventions.

Manifests Cited

Another sign among Democrats of distaste for a coalition with Republicans was the ill-fated manifesto, "an address to the American people," which was prepared by Vandenberg and Bailey. It was pointed out again today as an example of the reluctance of anti-New Dealers to carry their antagonism to the extreme of coalition. The manifesto drew few Democratic signatures and was withdrawn after Minority Leader Charles N. McNary advised some Republicans that the proposal was "ill-advised."

A part of the 10-point manifesto program, including balancing of the budget, elimination of "punitive" taxes, establishment in law of "responsibility" for labor, and restoration of confidence in government, was advanced by Vandenberg in a speech at the Boston Middlesex club Saturday night as essential to combat the recession.

He recalled that Lincoln was a "coalitionist" and said, after paying tribute to the "patriotism of many sound Jeffersonian Democrats," that he anticipated a "deeply conscientious realignment of our American political forces."

"Some people say all cigarettes are alike, Mr. Snead . . . Can Camels really be so different?"

"There's a big difference, sir. I can tell the difference in the way Camels hit the spot and agree with me! I know most American fliers who have several thousand hours in the air. The majority are steady smokers and prefer Camels. Years of experience have taught them that Camel is a really different cigarette!"

AFTER THE BIG TWA SKYSLIPPER, above, was set down in Newark Airport, M. C. Coben was chatting with Hal Snead, chief pilot of the Eastern region, and Isabella Judkins, air hostess of Glendale, California. Hal pulled out his Camels and offered them around. And so they got to talking cigarettes!

NUISANCE IN THE SENATE

THAT filibuster against the anti-lynching bill in the United States Senate has become a nuisance. The principle of the thing may be fine, but as a practical matter lynching is diminishing so rapidly that it is no longer a problem of national importance. Certainly it is not important enough at this time to be allowed to renew old sectional grudges and interfere with legislation for economic recovery and other matters demanding the prompt action of Congress.

If there has to be an anti-lynching bill, giving the federal government authority to intervene in such intra-state police problems, having waited this long, it can easily wait a few months longer. There is certainly no lynching emergency that justifies tying the federal government into knots when Congress should be dealing with living problems affecting the fate and destiny of the whole nation.

HALF-USED FREEDOM

TRAVELING recently on the Brussels-Cologne express, Anna O'Hare McCormick, correspondent for the New York Times, had brief but illuminating conversations with a young German customs officer and a Belgian railroad conductor.

The German was voluble about his job, his good wages, his country's triumphant progress toward independence.

The Belgian conductor then approached and, with intervals of thinking it over, brought out these comments:

"He'd better get his freedom before he boasts about his wages.

"At least I can say what I like. I can complain about my wages and my government. Mon Dieu, it is worth a good deal to be free to say they are rotten!" Then, after a thoughtful silence, "It has just occurred to me, Madame, that that is about all we use our freedom for—to complain. Listen to the French, these others, they always boast. They boast until they believe what they say. I wonder what would happen if we should blow the horn? Bad as we like to think politicians are, I could blow a blast in favor of our government that would wake up even the Belgians."

There's food for thought in that for American complainers. We appreciate the great value of our freedom to criticize, but sometimes overlook our freedom to co-operate and deal justly with each other.

Modern military strategy seems to be mostly baby-killing.

Seems as if prosperity, like the wind, "bloweth where it listeth, and man heareth the sound thereof, but cannot tell whence it cometh or whither it goeth."

With all this radio commentating, for and ferninst, no matter what happens, people can't say they weren't told.

"Fear Hitler's Next Step is Expansion." Chest or territory?

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . Hour by Hour

PAGES from the Diary of an Antiquated Reporter:

Brought out of slumber by the singing of birds, a great robin redbreast leading the delightful chorus. How much more pleasant than the nerve shredding jangle of an alarm clock. Below stairs as soon as possible and directly into the yard to inspect budding trees and learn that iris and other flowers have pushed green shoots through the ground. A day of Spring, almost Summer, in actual mid-Winter. Instead of temperatures in the seventies the ground should have been covered with snows, and that zephyr was substituting for a howling blizzard. Welcome, Spring. Thrice welcome.

Over the paves to the plant and then about the ville, stopping to chat now and then about the weather, bowing to friends and answering an occasional inside hall. Who ever could desire any city with such fine friends to be found in the towns such as this. Those who walked Sunday should consider the city cousin who likewise strolled. Probably in the course of a two hour amble he met not a single person he knew, found no one in whom he was interested or who had even a remote interest in him.

A session with facts and figures, some of them not too pleasant, and then homeward for lunch, eaten with all doors open. A short drive through the country and then back by way of the canal, halting long enough to learn that Bish Given, Earl Smith and Chris Schwarz while entirely willing were catching no fish whatever. Saw a half hundred other anglers there, none of them catching fish, but all enjoying the outdoors.

There goes Charlie Mack, whose big annual shoe sale is going great guns. Chatted with George Griffith, head of the Retail Merchants Association, who expects much activity at the big city-wide sale scheduled for Thursday. And much activity there should be, too, for bargains without equal in a great territory are being offered.

Hear much talk pro and con on the American naval program. Me, I'm much in favor of more ships and a well trained army. That is because I am a real pacifist. Weak China is enough of an example to me of what happens to the nation that is unable to defend itself. We have the treasure box of the world and any and every nation on the globe would like to own us. But I think we will stick around for a while yet.

Here they come and there they go, local and visiting Elks ready for the big opening of their Golden Anniversary celebration. Luck to them and theirs.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

PRESIDENT GETS RING

WASHINGTON — For the last two months a steady stream of callers has filed in and out of the White House—Big Business men, Little Business men, Brain Trusters, Congressmen, Senators, all with a problem to lay at the President's feet or a solution to end the recession.

It has been a constant merry-go-round of problems, worries, squabbles—squabbles, worries, problems, all centering in one place, all dumped at one door.

And the man at the receiving end is tired. You can see it in his face, you can tell it by his actions. He would never admit it. He attempts to conceal it with his usual wisecracking. But he is tired.

There are many telltale signs. One is that in private conferences the old cocksure, bubbling-over confidence is gone. The President is cagey now. There was a day when he would try anything once, knew that he could experiment and get away with it.

Today he is not experimenting. He is looking over every proposal before he picks it up as if it were covered with prickles. He is testing the ground with one foot before he puts down the other. And being not only tired but cagey, the President is more inclined to be pushed himself rather than to push other people.

This is exactly the reverse of the way it used to be. He is adopting the old Coolidge policy of letting other people do the battling and then stepping in at the last minute to accept a compromise.

This was especially noticeable during his meeting with the thirty-one liberal Congressmen last week, when they took up the question of taxes. The old fire for keeping the undistributed profits tax was gone. A compromise between the two extreme taxation viewpoints was what Congress seemed to want, the President said, and he was willing to accept it.

NO WAGE WORRY

Toward the wage-hour bill, the President was a little more responsive. His support for it, he reiterated, had not for a moment dimmed. But when the liberals pointed to the danger that the bill might be sidetracked until the end of the session, then squeezed out in the rush to wind up Congress, the President did not seem greatly concerned.

He did not exactly say so, but he gave the impression that the wage-hour bill was now up to Congress. He had done his best. Either he was tired of fighting or he was trying to maneuver someone else into the position of carrying the ball. Probably it was both.

RESENTS CRITICISM

There is no question that the criticism Roosevelt has received from business is getting under his skin. During his meeting with the Roper advisory committee of Big Business men (not the turbulent Little Men), he said:

"You say I have criticized business, but for every criticism I have given you, you have given me fifteen to one. Now if you want to call a truce..." And he indicated that a truce would be O. K. with him.

This criticism probably is one reason Roosevelt has moved slowly in rushing up the economic ambulance. Probably he has been waiting for his enemies to clamor for aid.

It seems as if, the greater compression we get in our steam and gas engines, the more depression in our economic system.

Test Tried on Schoolboys Before Examination

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

A SURPRISING report comes from the New Jersey State Home for Boys. It has been found that benzedrine sulfate, administered in small doses one and one-half hours before time for examination, improved the total average score without causing any untoward reactions.

The drug has been known to produce a stimulating effect. It is also used as an inhalant for hay fever and cold in the head, but this is the first time its efficacy has been measured.

Fifty test boys took benzedrine in tablet form one and one-half hours before testing time, and 46 controls took facsimile lozenges which were nothing but sugar. Neither children nor teachers knew which group received which tablet. The same test was given to all 96 boys. The 50 who had taken the benzedrine showed a gain, as a group, of 63 points; those who took the placebo lozenges registered, as a group, a loss of 29 points in the total average score.

Boys who had taken a test a week before without the help of the benzedrine took another similar test after having taken benzedrine, and 92 per cent of them gained in scores on the second test.

Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Poems That Live

LIFE
Life! we've been long together,
Through pleasant and through cloudy weather;
'Tis hard to part when friends are dear;
Perhaps 'twill cost a sigh, a tear;
Then steal away, give little warning,
Choose thine own time,
Say not "Good-night," but in some brighter clime
Bid me, "Good-morning!"
—Anna Letitia Aikin.

THE SECOND COMING
The Saviour came. With trembling lips
He counted Europe's battleships.
"Yet millions lack their daily bread,
So much for Calvary!" He said.
—Norman Gale

You understand I am not recommending this to be done wholesale, but I am simply reporting on a scientific experiment. Benzedrine should certainly not be taken by anybody for any purpose except under the advice of a physician and the physician will supply the dosage, which I have not done in this article.

Champion Blood Donor
The question often comes up, how much blood can be given for transfusions? I find that the record is held by a French laborer who is the world's champion donor. Since 1924 he has sold 257 quarts of his blood. In 1935 he gave 95 transfusions.

There are a number of people who are working their way through college by giving blood for transfusions, and if anybody has a better record than this, I would like to hear it.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

MRS. C. S. H.: "We are serious by considering having our two children immunized against diphtheria—the youngest five and the eldest eleven years of age. Does this immunization have any effect on one who later takes an anesthetic such as ether?"

Answer: Your children certainly should be immunized against diphtheria, and ether later has no deleterious effect.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clendenning can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendenning, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene," and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

25 YEARS AGO

G. M. Buelen, Frank S. Baum and Frank Peters, of Duval, visited officials of the Citizens telephone company seeking to have their lines connected to the Ashville exchange.

G. A. Schleyer, John C. Stevenson, D. V. Courtright, A. W. Holman and Ira L. May were elected trustees at a congregational meeting at the Presbyterian church.

Maynard Brown was selected as manager for the Everts high school baseball team. Practice will be started soon.

CHAPTER 27

"SORRY TO have to ask you a lot of damn-fool questions," said Lord Simon after David Strickland had taken a chair, then scarcely paused before beginning to do so. "Ever changed your name?" he snapped.

"Changed my name?" repeated Strickland.

"If only, I thought, I had more insight! Was he really surprised at the question, or was he gaining time?"

"Yes. Deed poll, and all that sort of thing."
"No. I've never changed my name. Why?"
"Oh—just wondered. Known the Thurstons long?"
"A few years."

"Come here quite a lot, I suppose?"
"Yes. What's the idea of all this, Pilsoll?"
"Curiosity, old boy. Do you happen to be hard up?"

Very coldly Strickland said, "No, thanks. Why did you want me to lend you something?"

Lord Simon was quite unperturbed. "April Boy came in, then?"

Strickland half rose. "Is it any business of yours what bets I make?"
"Awfully sorry, old man. I suppose bets should be considered sacred. Between a man and his God—or his bookmaker. But my man, Butterfield, did happen to hear from a gentleman of similar calling to himself that you were in a tight corner this week. And if you want to put £100 on a horse at six to one, without anyone knowing it, I suggest you not using the extension of a telephone which has a man like Butterfield glued to the main phone."

"I shall tell Thurston how damnable I think it, that this sort of snooping should go on in a house where one's a guest."

"Far more damnable things than that have gone on in the last 24 hours. There has been, for instance, a murder."

"I can't see that it justifies your hanging round listening to my conversation on the phone."

"Well, let's waive the point, shall we? Then perhaps you will tell me just how matters stand between you and your bookies?"

"I'm damned if I will."

"Then I must tell you. That hundred you put on this morning was a last fling—an absolutely desperate shot. You're up to the eyes in debt, you had no means of raising the money, and you shoved this on knowing that if the horse did not win you could not find the hundred. You know only one bookie who would take the bet. Well, you've won. I congratulate you."

Strickland was calmer now, but sounded more dangerous. "Look here, Pilsoll, you're here—though heaven knows who asked you here—to find out who murdered Mary Thurston, not to ferret out details of my betting."

"But suppose—mind, I'm only just supposing—that there was some sort of relationship between them?"

"What the devil do you mean? How could there be?"

"What were you doing in Mary Thurston's room before dinner last night?"

Strickland turned furiously to me. "I've never liked you, Townsend. I've always thought you a mean-natured sort of devil. But I didn't think you'd join in this sneak's game."

I was about to explain that I should have had no right to keep any information like that to myself, when Pilsoll went on. "Well," he insisted, "what were you doing there?"

"I was about to explain that I should have had no right to keep any information like that to myself, when Pilsoll went on. "Well," he insisted, "what were you doing there?"

"I had something to talk over with Mary Thurston."

"And couldn't she lend you the money?"

I expected Strickland to break out again—I even wondered if there would be a fight. But perhaps he was a little cowed by the fact that the investigators knew of his visit to the dead woman's room. At all events, I was surprised to hear him say, "No," in a deep voice, but quite clearly.

"So you stole her diamond pendant?"

Again no outward sign of anger. "No. She gave it to me. Or at least told me to pawn it. It would raise what I needed." After a silence he went on, "I had told her on the phone the day before that I was in a hole, and she had promised to help me. Now she said that she was awfully sorry, something unexpected had happened, and she couldn't. I've no idea what she meant."

"It's funny," mused Lord Simon, "that when you happen to be speaking the truth, you're so much more convincing."

"That was the truth."

"Indeed? Then your troubles were over?"

"It seemed so."

"Until this morning—when you found that the police had charge of the pendant. Quite. Nothing that could be called 'trouble' had happened in the meanwhile, I suppose?"

"In the meanwhile Mary Thurston had been murdered."

"Ah yes. We must get back to that. You were the first, I think, to go to bed?"

"I believe I was."

"Bit unusual for you?"

"Perhaps. But I'd been up early that morning. I was dog-tired."

"Are you always dog-tired after getting up early?"

"No. I was last night."

"You had no other reason for going to bed so soon?"

"I was a bit bored. Townsend and the vicar were rather much in one room."

I took no notice, of course, inwardly deciding that I would not allow myself to be drawn into suspecting Strickland merely because he was attempting to be rude to me.

"And yet although you were so tired, you did not go to bed?"

"I had several letters to write."

"They must have been urgent."

"They were."

"When did you leave your room next?"

Without a moment's hesitation Strickland said, "When I heard the screams."

"Not before?"

"No."

"Did you hear Mary Thurston come to bed?"

"Not consciously."

"You heard no voices from her room?"

"No. The radio was playing right underneath me."

"You did not guess that anyone was in her room that evening?"

"Certainly not."

"Was your window open?"

"I don't think so."

Lord Simon stared straight at Strickland for a moment, and then with a gesture indicated that he had no more questions to ask. M. Picon said, "Monsieur Strickland, I have only one question to put to you. It is about those so horrifying screams. Perhaps you will be so good as to think carefully before you tell me what I want to know. It is a little matter, but so much depends on it. Where did those screams come from?"

I was less surprised at this ridiculous question than I would have been if I had not already heard it asked of Stall. Although I realized that I was unoriginal in doing so, and though I knew that my predecessors in the thought had always been proved ignominiously wrong, I could not help feeling that the little man had gone off the rails at last.

"Where did they come from?" repeated Strickland. "Why, from Mary Thurston's room, of course."

"You are sure of that?"

"But it never occurred to me to doubt it."

"Precisement. Is that why you are sure?"

"No. No, even when I first heard the screams, I knew they were from Mary Thurston's room."

M. Picon stared at him, as though he wanted even more confirmation, but apparently decided to let it go at that. Strickland walked over to the decanter and helped himself to a drink.

"I call this third degree," he said with a rather sheepish grin. "I need a good stiff drink."

"That is a sign of the cross-examination," said Sam Williams. "But not a sign of the Cross," said Mgr. Smith, waking up for the first time in the last three-quarters of an hour.

Alec Norris, who followed, could tell us very little. His room was on the other side of the corridor, and he had heard nothing, he said, until he had heard the screams. He had seen no one after he had gone up to bed, except Enid, who had been going into Williams' room as he had come back from the bathroom.

"You had a bath?"

"Yes, I always bath at night. I work afterwards, and I find that it clears the brain."

"Then you returned to your room?"

"I did. And settled down to write."

"Do you usually dress after having a bath at night?"

"Invariably, if I'm going to work."

He spoke precisely and calmly. All traces of the hysteria he had shown at first had vanished. His skull-like head was high, his cold eyes met his questioners.

"You were the first to reach Mrs. Thurston's door. Can you remember in what order the others came?"

"I think so. Thurston first, bounding upstairs like a madman, followed by Williams and Townsend. Then Strickland out of his room, then I think Fellows from upstairs, and perhaps half a minute later, Stall, also from upstairs."

"Did you notice the girl Enid?"

"Yes. But not for some minutes. I think it was after they had broken down the door. She came out of Thurston's room as white as a sheet. Fellows spoke to her, and she ran straight downstairs."

"You have a very accurate memory, Mr. Norris."

Hat, Scarf Match

A NEW AND clever little hat and scarf set would be a real help in brightening up the last months of winter. Leather has come into its own this season and is a leading motif in spring fashions. Shirley Ross, screen actress, is shown here wearing a striking hat and scarf of turquoise blue suede with a stitched treatment in black. The hat has a cap-shaped crown and achieves height through a single loop of leather cut in the same shape as the scarf. Florence Reichman of New York was the designer of the ensemble.

Don't Be

Hornswoggled!

That is, don't be bamboozled into filling your bin with coal until you know that it is GOOD coal. Some people have been tricked into buying coal from a truck peddler and then finding that they have a bin full of something black that gives them plenty of dirt, ashes and clinkers but very little heat. What can they do about it? Nothing... but they won't be "hornswoggled" next time. Remember there are many, many grades of coal but it is HEAT you are after and the only real economy lies in buying coal that gives you more HEAT for your money.

Buy your coal from a reputable dealer who stands back of the product he sells. We have good coal to suit every need and it will pay you to get our prices before you buy

About This And That In Many Sports

London To Invade City Tuesday Eve

London's varsity, the strength of which is not known by Tiger cagers, will invade the Athletic club court Tuesday evening for another basketball game. The London outfit has been playing a pretty good schedule, so should test the Red and Black. The local team suffered a letdown against Washington C. H. and took a 13-point smack on the chin. The Red and Black will be at full strength for the London scrap. Whitey Davis' ouchy hand having healed completely. Two prelims will be staged, the principals in the first one not yet being announced. Another sport feature is on the schedule for Tuesday evening when Gene Gagliardi of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., world's champion singles bowler, appears on the C. A. C. runways. Gagliardi will meet the best bowlers Circleville can provide in a series of singles games. The exhibition starts at 8:15 p. m. County cagers are warming up this week in preparation for the annual tournament opening Friday evening. Sessions will be held Friday and Saturday this week and Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week. Season duets are on sale at the superintendent's office and at all county schools. A donkey basketball contest is on the schedule this evening at the Pickaway township school with faculty members and civilians meeting. A large crowd is expected to fill the gymnasium for the entertainment. Ohio State's thumping of Purdue surprised many, many court fans. The Bucks have been in and out all year. They are easy on foreign courts but pretty tough when the can get an opponent on the coliseum hardwood. The work of Dick Baker, Dick Boughner, Jimmy Hull, John Schick and Jim McDonald was about as good as any team has produced this year. **

ASHVILLE QUINT WINS 56-34 OVER DRESDEN OUTFIT

The Dresden team defeated Ashville in a game played on its home court during the holidays.

Dresden was unable to stop Chuck Gray, Junior Gregg and Red Mallory, who totalled 42 of the winning team's points.

In a preliminary the Ashville eighth graders defeated the freshmen 17 to 13.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

RESIST TEMPTATION

WHO DOESN'T get a kick out of managing to take the first trick with some extremely small spot card? By so doing you save all your larger ones for later use. But if taking the first trick cheaply means that you block your side from more tricks than the original one, you have to pass up your chance to have that early fun.

Three-No Trumps by South was the final contract on this deal, South having opened with 1-No Trump, North bidding two and South three.

When the club 2 was led, the 5 was played from dummy, the 3 by East and without thinking South played the 4. When he did he ruined his chance of ever making the contract. The heart 2 was led and the 9 finessed, which lost to West's Q. West returned the spade 10, which South won with the J.

He cashed the spade K and led the club 7, hoping West would allow the J to win. West, who had been able to get a count on the suit, jumped in with the Q, and from that point on it was hopeless for declarer to enter the dummy.
Had he won the first lead of clubs with an honor and then cashed his two high spades, he could have followed with the club K and a small club. Whether West won the third round or not, South would still have had a club to get to the J and cash the two remaining spades, which in addition to the two Aces and three club tricks would have given him game.

ALL-TIME RECORD SET AS MERCURY CLIMBS TO 70-DEGREE MARK IN CITY

RAIN AND LOWER TEMPERATURES ARE PREDICTED

Blizzards and Threats Of Major Flood Menace West Coast

CROPS ENDANGERED

Snow Plows Trapped In Northern Section

Circleville and Pickaway county residents checked their furnaces and stoves, opened windows and doors Sunday, and enjoyed a day of Florida weather with the temperature reaching an all-time record of 70 degrees.

The temperature took a 30-degree tumble during the night after a light rain. More rain and lower temperatures were predicted for late Monday and Tuesday.

Scores of Circleville residents enjoyed walks and auto rides. The temperature was only four degrees under that recorded in Miami, Fla., where the mercury rested at 74.

The state weather bureau reported the temperature was the highest recorded since Oct. 30, 1937 when thermometers reached 71 degrees. It was the warmest Feb. 13 in Circleville history.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 14 — (UP) — Rains, blizzards and high winds ravaged California today, bringing serious flood threats, interrupting railroad service, breaking communications and turning hundreds from lowland homes.

Nineteenth Day of Rain

It was the 19th consecutive day of rain. Weather bureau records were broken.

The Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys, richest of California's inland agricultural empire, were impeded. Thousands of acres of crops were flooded and destroyed. The mountains were locked in by snows. Immense drifts halted highway and rail traffic. Crews fought to bring stranded passenger trains through.

Despite the seriousness of the storms and their wide extent, only two deaths were reported over the week-end.

Torrential downpours on hill and mountain slopes sent numerous slides crashing down on highways and railroad lines. Wide gaps were torn in concrete roads.

In the Sacramento delta region near Isleton, a rich asparagus district, hundreds of men worked on levees where the river was swollen to dyke top by rains and tides backing up from San Francisco bay.

Levees burst in the Stockton area, near the junction of the Stockton and Stanislaus rivers, and truckloads of men were recruited in Stockton and rushed to fight the waters spilling over fertile fields.

Snow Plows Trapped

Wind, almost of gale strength, whipped snow into 30-foot drifts, and from Redding came a report that snow plows were trapped.

The extreme Northern part of the state and Southern Oregon suffered the brunt of a driving blizzard.

The weather bureau reported that no relief was in sight. San Francisco and the surrounding territory, deluged yesterday, had additional rain forecast for today and tomorrow.

J. P. Quigley, transportation superintendent of the Western Pacific railroad, reported the blizzard surmounted all on record.

"The mountains have become

Chillicothe Reformatory To Study Mental Quirks

CHILLICOTHE, Feb. 14—(UP)—On completion of a group of buildings now under construction at the United States Industrial Reformatory here, experiments in clinical psychopathic observation and study of criminals with peculiar mental quirks will be undertaken.

The new step in the direction of crime study is expected to offer aid to the inmate who finds himself the victim of a crime urge, when he is convinced he should "know better."

Dr. Justin Fuller, prison bureau psychiatrist at Washington, said mental experts will try to discover what affects some of the "repeaters" sufficiently well advanced mentally to recognize their own shortcomings, and want to be "saved from themselves."

"These men, ordinarily have fine brains, but are erratic and their actions are unpredictable, even to themselves," he said.

Physio-therapy, occupational therapy and other adjuncts will be available for aid in the clinical analysis of the inmates.
